

19th International Conference on Chemistry and the Environment

Environmental Chemistry for Sustainability

Belgrade, Serbia, June 8-12, 2025

 EuChemS
European Chemical Society

 Serbian
Chemical Society

ICCE conferences are traditionally committed to scientific and individual diversity and inclusivity. Supporting these values includes:

- Welcoming, safe and productive environment for all meeting participants and staff
- Ensuring diversity and inclusion in all governance bodies and committees and when selecting keynote and plenary speakers

ICCE2025 Code of conduct

By submitting your original abstract (including figures), you give the permission to Serbian Chemical Society to publish it in E-book of abstracts that will be publicly available during and after the Conference, as an e-publication with ISBN number. The information and the opinions given in this publication are provisional. They reflect the views only of the author. The EuChemS, Serbian Chemical Society and the Editors cannot be held responsible for any typographical errors or any use, interpretation or their consequences, which may be made of the information contained therein.

By registering for the conference and presenting your work at the conference you declare that you have right to grant the ICCE2025 permission to use, reproduce, display or distribute materials from presentation, including derivative works. For example, report on sessions or presentations can be prepared for the scientific journals, summaries on social media.

Presenters are encouraged to use “no recording or copying” sign on their slides or posters to discourage content copying. At the same time, they should be aware that organizers are not able to fully enforce all the participants to follow the rules. Therefore, we advise presenters to censor any material that they do not want to share publicly by using the below presented sign.

Respecting copyright by proper attribution the original sources, obtaining necessary permissions for presentations and publishing the abstract, respecting license conditions for work published under Creative Commons, careful use of materials published on websites or webpages that also may require permissions are all responsibility of authors and presenters.

We inform you that the Serbian Chemical Society intends to take official photos. By registering for the Conference you give the permission to Serbian Chemical Society to use the photos solely for the purpose of documenting and promoting activities carried out during the event and in ICCE's and EuChemS marketing materials that will or may be used at the official websites of EuChemS and/or Serbian Chemical Society, and official communication channels including but not limited to social networks, brochures, journals, etc.

By registering for the conference, you agree to abide the following rules:

- Capturing and sharing the research being presented should be done in respectful way by respecting intellectual property of presenter and providing appropriate attribution.
- Please respect the presenter's request to refrain from recording, making photos, copying or disseminating their talks or posters in various media, including social media.
- Your abstracts, posters and presentations should not advertise any services, products or companies.